- Strong industry partnerships add multidimensional collaboration and gamification capabilities to agile offerings.
- Small but highly respected consulting organization comprising a good mix of consultants and practitioners.

Quotes and Excerpts by Hansa Iyengar, Analyst, IT Services – Ovum
"Persistent took the lead in the Capability Matrix Category, outperforming the larger outsourcers and system integrators in this report. This lead and the top score in project management and consulting category are based on its mature and practical approach to helping clients understand the business implications of adopting agile (or otherwise) across transformative engagements."

"Persistent doesn't just deliver agile, it is agile. It uses that experience to bring a heavily tailored approach, customized to the culture of each individual customer for agile transformation. As their customers move incrementally toward greater agile maturity and adoption they are able to build alignment across IT and business to help their enterprises understand and embrace the relevance and power of agile."

Munjay Singh, President, Services – Persistent Systems
"IT services or outsourcing optimized for cost, size, specialization, and predictable speeds is archaic and dying. The future, which is here, is about smaller teams, shorter timeframes, and full stack technology expertise with active customer involvement. Customers win not just by responding to, but actually anticipating fast-changing market conditions. Our unique history with software development and product engineering at the very core of our DNA has given us this deep expertise in Agile."

Anand Deshpande, Founder and CEO – Persistent Systems
"Software 4.0 is the inevitability of software-driven everything, a revolution on the scale of Industry 4.0 and the future of factories and industrial manufacturing. Things, experiences, and business models are becoming software-driven, powering the emergence of DevOps and continuous engineering along with the new found appreciation and need for Agile. With our leadership in Agile, Software 4.0 is shaping the next wave of growth and differentiation for Persistent."
